REGINE

APERÇU.

If you're looking to explore the fabulous West Mediterranean on a yacht with some alternative thinking about layout, then REGINE is the one for you. She is from Sanlorenzo's Asymmetric series, featuring a sidedeck to starboard but not to port, which means more space for you and your guests.

The day starts with breakfast at the flybridge dining area, where you can check out the dreamy views of your anchorage as you enjoy some delicious fare. After breakfast you can take a few steps aft and stretch out on sofas or sun loungers to warm in the morning sun. If you're moored stern-to in one of the many delightful ports the West Mediterranean offers, there's a second, less visible, open-air dining option up on the foredeck. The table also lowers to create a huge sun pad, making it a great place to tan as you watch the world go by while underway to the next anchorage.

When it comes to excitement on the water, REGINE has plenty to offer. As well as getting you ashore to experience the bars, restaurants and cultural delights, the tender can tow the yacht's two donuts and waterskis for adults and children. On top of that, there are two SeaBobs, a two-seater jetski and a pair of inflatable paddleboards for a more relaxed exploration. You can watch all the watersports fun from the comfort of the lounge on the main deck aft.

If the midday sun is a bit too intense, you can always settle into a sofa in the lounge and catch a movie on the large TV, though you may be distracted by the fabulous views through full-height windows on either side. It's a great place to continue the conversation after enjoying a sumptuous supper at the dining table next to the lounge.

When it's time for bed, yours is the main deck master suite, with picture windows on three sides and access to the sidedeck. Forward of the aft-facing double berth is a walk-in wardrobe, and aft is a marble en suite with a shower room. On the lower deck, the family-friendly accommodation includes a full-beam VIP cabin, also with an en suite with shower room and a walk-in wardrobe, as well as two double cabins, allowing her four crew to give eight guests a wonderful charter.

If you want to be treated like relaxed royalty as you cruise the cradle of superyacht chartering, book REGINE today.
